Stunning views
Room cost per person
From €260 winter to €140 summer

→ You’re seeking charm, theatre, and more than a little romance. And that’s Blue through and through. It’s all in the details: the rare-find antiques and plush textiles, the carefully selected artworks. And what about the tiles in that modern Victorian en-suite bathroom? Stunning. Before you turn to your luggage, you throw open the traditional shutters to see: wow. Now that’s what you call a view.

Filled with romantic details

A rare and rustic antique dresser. An original fireplace. Traditional wooden shutters, a beautifully upholstered easy chair, a delicately patterned – and exceedingly inviting – sofa. Every corner of Blue is furnished with eclectic details. No wonder it’s a favourite for honeymoons.

Throw back the shutters

Before you retreat to your impeccably comfortable, king-sized bed, pull closed the traditional wooden shutters. And in the morning, set the coffee machine humming and fling them wide for sunrise-lit views towards Avoriaz, over the River Dranse, and up into the Ressachaux mountain range.

Generous, adaptable space

This exceedingly generous, king-size room is ideal if you like to stretch and sprawl; you’ll have your pick of luxurious lounging spots. And there’s plenty of space for families too. Ask us to add a single bed, or bunk beds, if you’ve junior skiers in tow.

→ The first thing you notice is that bathroom: a deep romantic red that turns spiced orange in lamplight. You brush a finger along the richly painted cabinet before collapsing onto a king-sized bed beneath floor-to-ceiling tapestry. And the balcony? It begs for an aperitif. How could you say no? You throw open the doors, ice cubes tinkling against glass, to sunset views of the mountains. Oh, yes; this will do nicely.

MANOR HOUSE ROOM

The rich colour scheme of INDIA was inspired by the subcontinent

Let the outside in

The balcony is a standout feature in India. Overlooking the beautiful back garden and gazing up towards Morzine's old town and Avoriaz, it's made for pre (and post) dinner drinks. Choose your tippie and settle at the bistro table in the summer. And in ski season? Even better. Take in acres of snow-decked slopes, right at your feet.

Exotic details

After Dorrien and Di – the owners of Hotel Coutettaz – visited India, they returned bursting with inspiration. Notice the influences in every corner of this luxurious bedroom; opulent furnishings, authentic textiles and a rich colour palette take you somewhere else entirely. Weren't you in Morzine, a moment ago?

Walls that talk

India was part of the original grange. On your right at the top of the stairs you can see where we cut through the old stone wall to make our way in, splitting the former granary store into two beautiful rooms with unique characters. The other is, of course, Grange.

Come in from the cold

Underfloor heating, dark wooden floors, cosy textiles, a beautifully spiced colour palette. This is a room made to warm weary bones chilled by the mountains. Before dinner, refresh in the cleansing steam of the spacious walk-in shower; you'll love the hi-tech details.

GARDEN ROOM

MAZOT is our historic garden hideaway

→ Cloistered at the bottom of the Hotel garden, you find it: a traditional Savoyard mazot, radiating pure Alpine charm. You climb the steps and push open the door to luxurious sheets and exposed wood; to beautiful views and evening sun. You’re not one for hyperbole. But there, tucked away in the calm and quiet, mountains stretching ahead of you – yes. Perhaps you would call it paradise.

A unique Alpine stay

A mazot is a wooden chalet, made in miniature. They were traditionally built to house a family’s valuables, and ours kept everything from grain to house deeds to the family Bible. Now, though? It’s an historic hideaway, infused with Alpine charm and more than a little romance.

Get away from it all

Couples love Mazot. Perhaps it’s the location: secluded at the bottom of the Hotel garden, away from the hustle and bustle. Perhaps it’s the rustic allure of the Mazot itself. Either way, it continues to entice those seeking a romantic Alpine break. Come; escape for a while.

Watch the sunset

Bring a bottle of something delicious back to Mazot before the sun goes down; the exclusive, sheltered balcony is the perfect spot to take in the evening sun. Step outside, watch the sky turn to fire, raise a toast. And tomorrow? Do it all again.

→ Well hello, sunshine. You step over the threshold of Old Kitchen into a bright and spacious room with a seriously sunny disposition, all soft yellow with accents of gold and cream. Is it any wonder you're suddenly craving a French 75? Luggage resting on the king-size bed, you poke your head into the charming en-suite – and immediately make a date with that rolltop bath. What could be better than bubbles after a long day on the mountain?

The heart of the home

This room has lived many lives. Once it was part of the stables, and then, well – the clue's in the name. From 1901 this was the manor house kitchen, filled with the hubbub of jostling pans and clattering whisks. Now? It's finally able to rest, swapping trampling feet for peacefully slumbering heads.

Bright and beautiful

Old Kitchen is filled, from corner to corner, with sunlight. It's one of the brightest rooms in our Morzine hotel, made even lighter by the soft yellow walls and plush, golden textiles. And it only gets better once you look out the window. Views of the imposing Roc D'Enfer will have you itching to strap on your skis.

A family affair

Of course couples love Old Kitchen. But it's equally good for family skiing holidays. Ask us to add an extra single bed or bunk bed if you're bringing a junior adventurer or two; while that king-sized bed is incredibly generous, it'll be rather a squeeze for four.

MANOR HOUSE ROOM

FAMILY was the original master bedroom of the manor house

Historic comfort

This suite of rooms has comfort in its bones. In a past life, it was the master bedroom of the original manor house. We've held true to its nature with plush textiles, charming furniture and fresh, luxurious sheets you can hardly wait to climb into – nor bear to leave.

Make room

Searching for a luxurious family ski hotel? Family's beautiful adjoining bedrooms are made for families and friends. Add and remove beds to suit your group; nothing's too much trouble. Keep in mind, though, that both the second bedroom and bathroom are accessed through the first. Late night loo breaks must be made on tiptoe.

Choose a view

Two bedrooms means not one, but two stunning views. In the first you'll overlook the garden and gaze up to Pointe de Nyon. While in the back double bedroom, you'll brush aside the curtains each morning to views of the old town square and historic church.

→ You wanted room for everyone; in Family, you find two. You open the door onto quaint, iron-framed singles and peaceful garden views. Then, through to the king-sized bedroom: enveloped in soothing sage green, with rustic exposed beams and luxurious textiles. Friends or family, you'll all be quite at home. Though none so comfortable as you. You heft your suitcase, with a decisive 'fwump', onto that sumptuous bed. Mine.

A best-loved room

Pommier is a very popular room at Hotel Coutettaz. It's not difficult to see why: roomy double bed, old pine beams, secluded spot, sunshine to the rafters. Every nook radiates romance and charm. And of course, we know our skiers can never, ever resist a bath.

Historic harvest, historic home

The manor's workers once called Pommier home. And so did the manor's fruit. This room has been a living quarters and an apple and pear store, once stocked with sweet things destined to become ciders, pies and sauces. Now, however, it's a little sanctuary – and a guest favourite.

Soak it all in

It's no wonder Pommier is so bright and sunny. It might be one of our smaller rooms, but it's spoilt for good views; you've two big windows through which to take in the Hotel's gardens. When you wake, wrap up in your robe, pour a breakfast tea and spot the traditional Mazot and old water trough.

→ The cottage nestles at the end of a well trodden, gently winding footpath. You pass flowerbeds and branches; brush fingertips over rosehips. The front door? Heavy, rustic, swinging open to exposed pine beams, pristine white sheets and muted tones. Talk about idyllic. Talk about cosy. You already know just how your days will pass: coffee against fluffy pillows, luxurious breakfasts, sunlight on snow. And then? That bathtub has your name on it. Ah.

CELL was the town's jail
in times of trouble

→ Despite being a former jail, you find nothing at all prison-esque about Cell. Although – hold on a moment. Were there once bars on that window? Well, you wouldn’t mind being locked up here, ensconced in the big, beautiful bed and dreaming of your next day on the slopes. And that generous bath, nestled in the cosy en-suite, looks particularly inviting. Perhaps you’ll take a dip tomorrow, after you kick off your skis. But for now:
stretch, roll, slumber. This is the life.

Quirk and charm

Don't be fooled by the name. Cell is, of course, luxurious – all eleven of our signature bedrooms are. But it's also one of our most characterful spaces, bathed in soft yellow and blending original features and antique touches with must-have modern comforts.

This room has history

Search for clues: the ghosts of bars on the window, the beautifully weathered stone wall. In the 19th century the village mayor, a former owner of the manor house, turned what might have been a parlour or tack room into the local jail.
There was once a cheese cellar hidden beneath Cell, too. Don't look so hopeful;
it's long gone now.

Step into the garden

There are a couple of benefits to being on the ground floor. The first: easy access, a godsend for adventure-wearied legs that couldn't possibly face the stairs. The other? Your view onto the Hotel garden. Look out for the old water trough – the historic gossiping spot of the manor house cattle.

→ When you're that delicious kind of exhausted that only comes from a full day on skis, wheels, or hiking trails, you crave comfort. And you find it here in spades. bright yet cosy, luxurious yet understated, Grange is somewhere to refresh and recline. You soak weary bones in the roomy bath and dress for dinner before the balcony beckons you for a drink. Did someone order a gin and tonic? Cheers.

MANOR HOUSE ROOM

GRANGE began life as part of the original working barn

Walls that talk

Perhaps you've guessed from the name. But Grange was part of the original manor house barn, or 'grange'. You can see where we cut through the original stone wall at the top of the stairs to split the space into two beautiful rooms. The other is India.

Make yourself comfortable

When we designed Grange, we had one thing in mind: pure comfort. Think underfloor heating, sumptuous carpet and textiles and the kind of enveloping king-size bed that makes it harder than ever to rise early for the mountains.

Room for one more?

Just the two of you? In this bright and airy bedroom, you'll have plenty of space to spread out. And if you've one or two junior skiers in tow, the more the merrier. Ask us to add an extra single bed or bunk bed. It's no trouble; at Hotel Coutettaz, nothing ever is.

Let the outside in

Fling open the doors and soak in that view. The Grange balcony looks out on both the home ski run and the beginning of the famous Tour de France climb, Col de Joux Plane. Pull up one of the bistro-style seats, pour a coffee and settle in.

There are no stairs to climb at Cordonnerie. Instead, the Hotel's beautiful garden spills right from your doorstep. Order an aperitif from the bar and settle at the outdoor table, or take your morning tea in the sunshine. What's ours is yours; you needn't stay indoors.

For weary soles

This charming room was originally home to the village cobbler. While its bustling, clattering days repairing tired shoes are long past, Cordonnerie is now a welcome respite for adventure-wearied feet craving comfort, steam, and a beautifully warm bed.

→ You stumble upon the sanctuary you've been seeking in the beautiful Coutettaz garden. Hotel COUTETTAZ has history

→ Our original Alpine manor house is the oldest standing structure in Morzine, and has seen kings reign, wars fought and France changed and changed again.

It was constructed in 1771 during the reign of Louis XV by the original owner, Antoine Plagnat, a local Morzinoise and influential figure in Morzine’s slate mining industry. Morzine is a village built on slate, and Antoine used his mining profits to fund the original manor house. At the time, it was split in two: half for the family, and half for his herd of cattle during the winter. Don’t worry – we’ve cleaned up, and then some, since.

From Antoine, the house passed to the prominent Baud family of lawyers and solicitors which, over the following 200 years, included the mayor of the town. We can thank the Bauds for the property we love today; they added many of the rooms that now serve as bedrooms, including workshops for seamstresses, cobblers and carpenters and a traditional Mazot.

Our current owner, Dorrien Ricardo, leased the house to run as a hotel in 1993 and bought the building soon after. Since then, he has lovingly and respectfully renovated the house and grounds, carefully preserving the dark wooden beams and Morzinoise slate flooring that hint at the Hotel’s past.

There’s NOTHING quite like a couple of days on the slopes to win clients’ hearts or bring your team together. Here, you THINK DIFFERENTLY. See more clearly. Talk more deeply.

→ Hotel Coutettaz is just over an hour’s drive from Geneva. Whether you’re flying into the country or travelling by rail, it’s a simple journey. And as always, we’re here to help.

ARRIVING at Hotel Coutettaz

By plane or train

Flying into Geneva? Or taking the train to Cluses or Thonon les Bains?

Ask us to arrange transport between the airport or train station and Hotel. It's no trouble at all.

From Geneva airport, the journey is roughly an hour and fifteen minutes. And from one of the two train stations, it's about 45 minutes. Either way, you'll be here before you know it.

By car

GPS or Waze will bring you right to our doorstep. Use the following address: Hotel Coutettaz, 429 Chemin de la Coutettaz, 74110 Morzine, France.

The drive from Calais is around nine hours long. But you won't mind taking your time; winding through the Champagne region, regional natural parks, and Jura mountains, the scenery on the route to Coutettaz is truly stunning. Pack a picnic, and have your camera at the ready.

Directions

When you reach Morzine, turn right just after the Renault garage onto the Avenue de Joux Plane. The restaurant La Rotonde should be on your left.

Continue straight ahead past the ESF on your left and the ski shop, Felix Ski, on your right.

Shortly after Felix Ski, but before the roundabout, take the left turn. Continue to the bottom of this short road, past La Outa, and turn right.

Look out for a large stone and wood house called Le Mas de La Coutettaz; when you find it, you've reached your destination: Hotel Coutettaz.
